ABOUT YOUR HOME

Though it's a bit exaggerated it has been said a house is only as good as its doors. Doors that don't work correctly are annoying but easily corrected.

There are all sorts of door ailes, shrinking, swelling and warping ments—loose hinges, failing latch- of the dorr, itself.

If your doors are misbehaving you will be interested in a few quick methods of correcting their ailments.

Loose hinges can cause a door to stick. In order to correct this sticking malady, check to see if a hinge has worked loose. If tightening hinge screws doesn't do the trick, substitute longer screws.

Perhaps you find the hinges are tight, but the door has swollen. In this case, find the spot of contact by looking for scratches in the finish. Sand this spot with the grain of the wood, using medium sandpaper until the door operates as it should.

Sometimes it will be necessary to remove more wood than can be conveniently done with sandpaper. For thi, ailment, plane the offending edge with a block plane or a small smoothing plane. When working on the top edge of the door plane from the corner toward the center to keep from splitting out the edge grain.

When it is necessary to work on the bottom edge of a d or you'll have to take the door down. To do this—open the door and block up the bottom corner on the latch side with an old magazine. With a stick of wood and a hammer tap out hinge pins.

Remove the bottom pin first by holding the stick of wood securely against the pin and tapping lightly. Replace the top pin first when rehanging the door.

Don't put up with any of the annoyances discussed another day They are simple as well as inexpensive to fix—you can do the job yourself.

KNOW THE WEATHER

Should you be afraid of lightning in summer thunderstorms? Will you be able to see the bolt that strikes you, if you're hit?

There is no reason whatsoever to be afraid during a lightning storm. There is reason to be sensible, and to stayout of places where lightning is most likely to strike. But you will not see the lightning that hits you — if you're hit.

It's technically possible, of course, that if you were standing outside in the open and saw the streak of lightning high above, starting down toward the earth, that same bolt might hit you. But chances that you'll see the discharge that strikes you are almost nil.

So there is no reason to fear lightning. If you're struck you'll know nothing about it, and there will probably be no agony beforehand, if it's fatal. Therefore, take sensible precautions and do not risk unwise exposure, and then sit back and enjoying the great show that is lightning. If ou'ly spend some time at a window with a sweeping view, you'll find it is a magnificent sight.

RRIVAL OF SUMMER

ms for the Summer solstice ved. This arrives midway the Spring and Fall equin- the twenty-four hour day y half day and half night. ar the first day of Sum- ns on June 21st, as it es, and Summer will last ptember 23rd, which is day of Autumn. The hot- of the year will prob- ist—if the weather follows ional day of the year.

h true, usually, because sh stores up heat in the hen the sun shines longest, and August the earth has great quantities of heat likely to register tempera- hich exceed those of days which were actually longer in sunlight, which occurred back in June.

Therefore, even though the longest day of the year is upon us, the hottest period of the year is yet before us.

Summer should bring with it many thoughts. It means vacationtime to many students, and it means short vacation periods to many adults.

In this connection, safe driving should be stressed. Actually conditions for driving are better in the Summer than at any other time of the year. There is more light, no ice on the roads, except in unusually high locations, and motorists usually enjoy safe driving conditions. Yet holiday accidents annually take a terrible toll on the nation's highways.

To make this Summer different from others in the past, drive safely on your trips to the mountains, lakes and beaches; and reduce the death rate, which might include you.

THE VIRGINIA STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Dr. Charles H. Malik, former president of the United Nations General Assembly, will be the principal speaker at the 72nd annual meeting of the Virginia State Bar Association, at Hot Springs, July 5-7.

Now a professor in the School of International Service at American University, Dr. Malik will speak on "The Present World Situation." He will be introduced by Lewis F. Powell, Jr., Richmond attorney.

Nearly 800 persons are expected to attend the meeting. This would make it the largest gathering of lawyers ever held in Virginia, according to William T. Muse, President of the Association.

The three-day session will get underway July 5, with an address from the president who is also Dean of the Law School at the University of Richmond. Mr. Muse will speak on "A Pledge of Our Usefulness."

A panel discussion, " An Appraisal of Trends in Legal Education", will be held July 6. The panel will be composed of T. Munford Boyd, of the University of Virginia; George
